Wonders of a Kaleidoscope.

The following curious and interesting calcu-lation has been made on the number of changes that can be made in the picture pre-sented in that remarkable instrument, the kaleldoscope. Supposing the instrument to contain but wenty small pieces of colored glass and that ou make ten changes each minute. at that rate it would take the inconceivable number of 462,980,888,576 years and 360 days to go through the immense number hanges that can be produced! Verily, the human mind shrinks from the contemplation of such immense numbers. We have no more of an idea of what such a length of time means than we have of the meaning of the word "eternity."

According to another eminent mathematician, if only 12 pieces of glass are put into the slide it will take 33,264 days or something over 91 years to exhaust its variations.
